

MARKET REPORT – WEEK 20

BASED ON SALES AND PURCHASES OF VESSELS WEEK ENDED FRIDAY 21ST MAY 2021.

We commented last week that the dry freight market had undergone a small adjustment as the BDI fell back a little from 3183 at the end of week 18 to the 2939 it closed on at the end of week 19. In fact the BDI has continued to lose ground closing on 2869 at the end of week 20 with the capes and now the panamax rates drifting down. When looking at the world as a whole, this may be because we have been falsely believing that the Covid-19 pandemic was behind us due to the roll out of vaccinations from last November and therefore pre-pandemic consumption is switching back on, but the fact most of us are missing is that it is only China, the US, Australasia and parts of the EU that have vaccinated enough people to really make a difference while the rest of the world is still very much in full pandemic crisis with numbers even still increasing in some countries. So realistically, apart from some of the most wealthy countries, the rest of the world is still in lockdown and far from being back to pre-pandemic demand levels whether it be for consumables, commodities or fuel, which means that proper WORLD economic recovery back to 1st half 2019 levels is probably still 1-3 years away and meantime the recovery, which has definitely started, is likely to be slower and less dynamic than many of us had been expecting, but on the plus side there is still huge upside potential in almost all markets and sectors yet to come.

The above of course means that there is likely to be a longer and more gradual shipping recovery than some commentators have been expecting, but our industry is thankfully well placed to do so due to both the wet and dry fleet's low order books at the end of 2020 and which is why we continue to see steady second hand S+P activity each week and a growing number of newbuilding contracts being inked – hopefully the banks and investors will this time remain much less keen to finance newbuilding tonnage in order that equilibrium is maintained in the overall fleet sizes.

In the recycling sector, the subcontinent breakers (in Bangladesh, Pakistan and India) remain physically either in Covid lockdown or hoping to reopen soon, however that has not stopped many of them continuing to purchase tonnage at very attractive levels (for the Sellers) due to recent strong demand and rising prices of domestic steel. Levels on offer are now excess $500 per LDT across the board and up to $540-560 in Bangladesh and Pakistan for tankers and container vessels. It will be interesting to see how long such demand and top prices remain offer with the approaching quieter monsoon season now not far away.
